Platinum Data Solutions' Nima Oreizy Named One of HousingWire's Rising Stars for 2015

Company's CTO is the only technologist named to prestigious list

ALISO VIEJO, Calif., June 2, 2015 – Platinum Data Solutions, “The Appraisal Quality Company,” today announced that Nima Oreizy, the company’s chief technology officer, has been named one of HousingWire’s Rising Stars for 2015. Forty individuals were selected as designees this year. Oreizy is the only technologist named to the list.

Oreizy was selected for creating four industry-first technologies—RealView®, Collateral Expert®, OptiVal® and FreeAppraisalReview.com—which have not only saved countless costly labor hours, but also elevated loan quality and protected billions of dollars in assets across the U.S. He has worked with Platinum Data for over 13 years. His career includes work with Apple and Microsoft.

HousingWire’s annual Rising Stars program recognizes mortgage and housing industry professionals under the age of 40 who have become leaders in their respective fields. According to HousingWire:

“...our Rising Stars are not people who merely show potential, but those who can point to real accomplishments that have propelled their companies and the industry as a whole into new levels of growth and profit.”

“Nima’s contributions have helped this country’s mortgage lenders, investors, community and regional lenders, credit unions, midsize mortgage banks—and their vendors—protect their profits, investments and reputations,” said Phil Huff, CEO of Platinum Data Solutions. “He has helped position Platinum Data as the industry’s go-to choice for collateral data and analytics. We’re so happy that HousingWire has recognized his achievements and monumental impact on the industry.”

Platinum Data specializes in providing the data and analytics that help companies determine the most accurate, current property values. Its key technologies include: RealView, the appraisal QC technology that leverages business intelligence specifically for lenders and AMCs; FreeAppraisalReview.com, the industry's only free appraisal review technology specifically for appraisers; OptiVal®, the industry's only software that automates AVM analysis and enables the responsible use of AVMs; and Collateral Expert®, the industry's only technology that provides comprehensive property data based on a property address.

“Creating technology is what I do, I’m just lucky enough to have found an organization that shares my ideologies when it comes to things like relevance, effectiveness and simplicity,” said Oreizy. “It’s great to work at a company that is dedicated to solving industry problems. Platinum has given me the freedom to create technologies that make a tangible financial difference—to the industry, its organizations, and ultimately, borrowers and the American public. It’s a real honor that HousingWire has recognized our work and contributions by naming me to this year’s list of Rising Stars. ”
